“Down But Not Out”

Have you ever had the props knocked out from under you? Maybe it was a job termination, or some major disappointment, or some moral failure. You were tempted to give up and quit. Maybe you were struggling with anger or feelings of guilt. Sometimes the blows come from people you trusted and loved.

The apostle Paul talked about how we are sometimes knocked down but that we are not knocked out (II Corinthians 4:8). The attacks are hard to bear. The disappointments and failures are so heavy we feel we can never get up again. But, the battle is not over.

The reason we are not out is stated a few verses later, “...our inner nature is being renewed every day” (4:16). We can get up because deep inside of us we are not destroyed. The faith we trusted before is still there. The strength that kept us going for so long is still there. We may have stumbled over some sin in our lives or some obstacle from the outside...yet we can get up again.

The greatest servants have been broken. They have learned discipline through confronting the ugly parts of themselves. They have learned humility at the foot of the cross. They have learned that God didn't give up and neither should they. They have learned that cleansing may come through tears of brokenness.

The Holy Spirit renews us through empowering our feeble efforts. He doesn't let us stay down when we want to get up. He created new life in us once and He can do it again. No one needs to stay lost.

When you are knocked down don't lie on the floor and groan about how unfair everyone is or how weak you are. Take hold of His hand and He will lift you up. He isn't finished with you yet.

— Al Behel
